

ADVOCATING FOR YOUR CHILD ON THE AUTISM SPECTRUM

Target participants: Parents/carers.

Advocating for your child/children is frequently required in the role of a parent/carer.

Engaging in proactive and positive communication with your child's key networks can sometimes be challenging to navigate and may lead to feelings of frustration and uncertainty about where to seek help.

This interactive workshop for parents and carers will explore strategies for advocating for the implementation of reasonable supports for young people on the autism spectrum across various contexts, including school and community settings.

Topics will include:

- Understanding your child/ren's rights
- Working positively and proactively with your child's network, including school and community stakeholders
- Ensuring your voice, and that of your child's, is heard
- Where to go for more information and support.
