

Community Inclusion Consultancy

All People, All Places, All Spaces.

Autistic and neurodivergent people may face barriers in social, physical, sensory, and cognitive environments that affect their ability to access and participate in the community.

Our experienced consultants partner with community organisations and workplaces to offer expert guidance in building inclusive, welcoming environments for all. Through ongoing training and tailored strategies, we deliver strengths-based supports for your unique setting. By applying inclusive design, meaningful adjustments, and customised resources, we help remove barriers and improve access and participation for everyone.

A truly inclusive space moves beyond compliance and creates accessible and inclusive spaces for everyone...

Our team of professionals combine experience from a wide range of sectors, facilities, and operations. We combine diverse expertise to support access that is dignified—not just compliant.

We have worked with playgrounds, shopping centres, early childhood settings, schools, universities, public transport, entertainment precincts, and workplaces.

Inclusive design enables access participation and a sense of belonging...

Our team delivers:

- Evidence-Informed Practice: Our approach is grounded in evidence-informed practice, research, and co-design with people with lived experience.
- Tailored Support: We work with you to enhance your business model, daily practices, and physical environment to support genuine inclusion.
- Targeted Resources: Co-development and implementation of resources and strategies.

An authentically inclusive environment surpasses compliance.

Inclusion is good business. It recognises and accommodates differences in the way people access spaces and environments, and facilitates dignified, equal and intuitive use by everyone. Utilising frameworks and guidelines to establish accessible and welcoming spaces for all, it surpasses regulatory standards and fosters practices that respond to basic human rights.

Statewide Delivery: Available face-to-face at your community setting or workplace (travel fees apply) or online. Fees apply, contact our team for a comprehensive quote.
